The Mexican Lady.

The Mexican lady rarely appears upon the street unattended by a servant except in her carriage, although the rigorous observance of this custom has been greatly relaxed in the last few years owing to the freer ways of foreigners.

The Yard Measure.

King Henry I. had an arm thirty-six inches long. That is why the English yard is its present length, a little fact which many students have learned and forgotten.

Box Shooks.

A box shook is a set of boards prepared for the making of a box and packed up for convenience of transport. A house shook is all the material for one frame house put up in compact form for shipment, etc.

Coffee Inebriates.

There are coffee inebriates in Paris. Usually they are laundresses, a class of women who are especially devoted to the fragrant beverage. The coffee inebriate comes at last to such a state that he or she lives almost exclusively on an effusion of the beloved berry, with the addition of a little brand soaked in it.
